Hi Charlotte,

Called earlier about the emails and the redaction of them. I left a message but thought I would email.

I spoke with James and his view is the same as mine re data about the children in emails from 3rd parties. The 3rd parties or data that leads to their identification should be redacted. So if, after redacting emails to remove the data of anyone else or data that could lead to the ID of the data of anyone else, you find that there's not much left don't worry as we can address this at a later stage and we will be able to show that the redactions were necessary to protect the data rights of another person. The important thing to ensure is that the identity of someone else (dad) is not revealed or information that leads to the identification of someone else (dad) is not disclosed to the mother.

If you need me you do call. I am around tomorrow and on Monday and Thursday of next week. If you want me to look at anything with you then I am more than happy to do so. These situations can be tricky.
