Hi Caroline,

Thanks for sending this through. I have updated it with some more information as some additional information about some of the companies are now on the Knowledge Bank. Just to make you aware - if they are on the Knowledge Bank their details may be there but they may not actually have been assessed so might be worth checking through your list again, although due diligence is being done all of the time. If I am aware of one and it affects any schools that I work with then I will automatically update your details.

With regard to some of the smaller companies like Sportacus I would suggest you do check that they have a privacy notice as that would be the basic due diligence.

Regarding the photographer you should also check about the privacy notice but also about how long they keep the photos and where. It may also depend on how the data is collected by the photographer - for example, the school may not be involved in the data collection at all, but then may receive the photos for handing out. I know James is planning to do some more guidance around this at some point.

Otherwise it looks as though you are completing the list which is the main thing. Hope you managed to get a break in the half term!

Many thanks,
Tammy
